Man dies in collision near Tory Hill

Police are investigating a single-vehicle collision that killed Belleville man Gerald Pope, 64, on Wednesday, May 25.

According to police, just after 6 p.m. Haliburton Highlands OPP was called to the accident on Highway 118 near Hadlington Road in Highlands East. Haliburton County Paramedics and the Highlands East fire department also responded to the call.

Police say that the car was headed eastbound on 118 west of Hadlington Road near Tory Hill when it left the roadway and struck a rock cut.

Pope was pronounced dead at the scene.

OPP Technical Traffic Collision Investigators are assisting with the investigation.

Over the weekend there was a serious motor vehicle collision near Minden.

A 64-year-old Minden Hills man and a 29-year-old East Gwillimbury woman are in hospital with serious injuries following the single-vehicle collision on Deep Bay Road.

Developer working on condo plans for Haliburton

JENN WATT

Editor

Greystone Construction Ltd. and sales representative Trophy Property Corp. are moving through the necessary steps and studies to bring a new condo to Haliburton Village.

Called Wallings Way, the new three-storey development plans include 21 units ranging from 950 to 1,500 square feet with a shared courtyard, meeting area and yoga room.

"We think that's a great centre of town for residential. It's very well serviced and accessible," said Peter Brady, Trophy Property owner and broker.

21-unit condo would overlook Head Lake

The land they have in mind is 75 Wallings Rd., which is beside the MNR fire base property overlooking Head Lake.

Greystone president Pat Dube was at Dysart council on Tuesday, May 24, with Brady to talk to councillors about the plans.

While originally there were concerns raised by Dysart's director of planning Pat Martin about vegetation buffers and shoreline buffers, Brady said those issues have been remedied and they are moving forward on the studies needed to pursue a condo on the property.

"There will be public meetings and a chance for public input," he said.

Greystone and Trophy Property have worked together on several of the condo developments in Haliburton County including Granite Cove and Granite View in Haliburton Village and Newcastle in Minden.

As long as everything goes to plan, Brady expects Wallings Way will be completed by the fall of 2017.

"Ideally what we like to do is move the crews from one project onto the next one," he said. Newcastle will be completed this fall.

There is no target demographic for Wallings Way, however, Brady expects a similar clientele to Granite Cove, which appealed largely to people who already live in the Wallings Way is planned to look like this drawing, supplied by Trophy Property Corp. The condo would have 21 suites overlooking Head Lake in Haliburton. Following a council meeting on May 24, 2016, developer Greystone and Trophy are moving forward with the necessary studies and reports to rezone the property on Wallings Road.

Highlands and are looking for a more convenient location and lifestyle after spending years of lakefront or residential property ownership.

Martin said the next step for Dube and Brady is for them to submit their zoning bylaw amendment application, which will lead to a public meeting and community discussion about the project.

School board contacts mediator after labour board ruling

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

The chairwoman of the Trillium Lakelands District School Board says the board intends to get back to the bargaining table with Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation District 15 with the assistance of a provincial mediator following a ruling from the Ontario Labour Relations Board.

The board and the teachers' union local have been without a collective agreement for nearly two years.

Talks between the two groups broke off in February, with OSSTF District 15 declining the board's request to go to arbitration.

Demands from District 15 include easier access to taking personal days and the way teacher evaluations are conducted.

Issues include fairness and equity, specifically with teacher performance appraisals and the language in the collective agreement as it relates to occasional teachers, OSSTF district president Colin Matthew told the paper in an earlier interview.

Teachers have been instructed not to participate in school activities such as graduation ceremonies or provide comments on report cards.

In April, the school board filed an application with the labour relations board, "to seek a decision on whether or not the OSSTF District 15 demands are a legal negotiation position."

"In conclusion, none of the impugned proposals are necessarily inconsistent with the Education Act," reads a May 20 decision from the labour relations board, dismissing the school board's application.

"Unlike the Trillium Lakelands District School Board, we have been committed to the collective bargaining process throughout these negotiations," Matthew said in a release on the ruling. "Our members will certainly feel vindicated by this decision, but what they are really looking for is a fair, negotiated deal. It's now time for the board to finally sit down with us and engage in serious negotiations."

"We are disappointed in the decision," board chairwoman Louise Clodd said. "We reached out to the provincial mediator. We're hopeful the mediator will be available to work with both parties soon."

Clodd added that just because the board's application was dismissed, it does not validate the district's proposals.

District 15 is one of the few OSSTF locals in the province that's been unable to reach an agreement with its school board. Secondary teachers protested outside the board satellite office at Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School earlier this month.

We are disappointed in the decision. We reached out to the provincial mediator. We're hopeful the mediator will be available to work with both parties soon.

Library lacks staff to keep up with demand

CHAD INGRAM

Staff Reporter

An annual report from Haliburton County Public Library CEO Bessie Sullivan shows the library struggling to keep pace with demand for digital literacy programming.

"The growth of the Haliburton County Public Library has continued steadily over the last several years," the report reads. More and more pressure is put on the library to bridge the digital divide in the county and be the institution that ensures access to high-speed Internet for all people of the county. We understand that this role is important to the community, but we lack the staff capacity to keep up with the demand for digital literacy programming. Examples of this programming are workshops in how to set up an email account, social media efficiency, online searching including research databases, and how to use personal devices from e-readers to iPads."

Since 2008, the library's circulation has grown from about 70,000 to about 160,000 items a year. During the same period, attendance for library programming has grown from less than 2,000 people per year to some 6,000.

While a recommendation for the creation of a programming co-ordinator position has been made, "at the time there are no budgeted funds for this position so consideration was deferred."

Funding for the library's eight branches comes from the County of Haliburton.

"A programming co-ordinator would not only facilitate existing programming by providing staff support, but could also organize expanded programming to meet identified gaps in the digital literacy learning," the report reads. "Over the next few months the results in terms of how the partnerships will benefit the library and whether the grant writing has been successful will give the library a better idea of where we are unable to meet community needs."

According to the report, library staff will continue to monitor the situation on a monthly basis and pursue low-cost and no-cost solutions through grant writing and community partnerships, while keeping county council apprised of any budgetary impacts as soon as possible.

Net expenses for the library in 2016 were about $960,000, with about $780,000 of that coming from the county itself.

About $150,000 came from provincial subsidies, the remainder from other sources.

Haliburton County councillors are requesting a delegation at this year's Association of Municipalities of Ontario conference regarding a provincial library funding freeze that has been in effect for a number of years.

Initiative aims to reduce wildlife/car collisions in county

CHAD INGRAM
Staff Reporter

The Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry is teaming up with the OPP and the Ministry of Transportation in an attempt to reduce the number of collisions involving cars and deer in Haliburton County.

David May of the MNRF gave county councillors an update on the partnership during their May 25 meeting.

"It's still a relatively new partnership we're working on," May said, explaining that conversations began in 2014 after the ministry received a complaint from a resident who got into a collision with a deer in an area where the animals were being fed.

Despite ministry warnings that feeding deer is dangerous both for the animals and for humans, feeding continues to be a common practice for some county residents. Haliburton County has the second-highest rate of animal-vehicle collision in the province next only to Manitoulin, May said, the number of reported collisions sometimes exceeding 200 a year. So far in 2016, 61 have been reported.

"Many of them go unreported, so we know there's a higher number of them happening," May said, adding the vast majority of these collisions likely involve deer.

A map showed most of the reported collisions taking place along the county's major arteries, including Highways 35 and 118, and County Road 21.

May said the targeted reduction of brush near "hot spots" where deer are known to cross roadways is one way municipalities could help to reduce the number of collisions.

"So that folks driving along have more of an opportunity to see animals coming out of the bush," he said.

May said the ministry would like to work with the county government on the roads it is responsible for and that creating bylaws regulating deer-feeding was another way municipalities could contribute.

He said if residents wanted to help deer, rather than feeding them, packing down trails they use during the wintertime would be more helpful.

"People need to think about what their actions are and how those actions may be spinning out into the community," said Algonquin Highlands Reeve and County Warden Carol Moffatt, who noted an Algonquin Highlands fire truck was once in a collision with a deer in an area where the animals were being fed.

Moffatt said the county could work with the ministry on brush-clearing and that councillors could broach the issue at lake association meetings during the summer. The ministry is also working on a public awareness campaign and exploring a partnership with the Insurance Brokers Association of Ontario.

Staffing emergency dept. difficult

JENN WATT

Editor

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the Haliburton Highlands Health Services board meeting on Thursday, May 26 in Haliburton.

Dr. Greg Karaguesian, chief of staff, told the board that the emergency department is 95 per cent covered for summer, but he foresees issues in the fall.

Largely, the shortfall has to do with changing ideas about what local doctors should be doing.

"A lot of physicians that work in the office don't work in emerg," said Karaguesian.

"I don't think it's unique to Haliburton. Young doctors do not want to do emergency work."

He said that 15 or 20 years ago, working both as a family doctor in a small town and doing shifts in the emergency department was expected, but that is no longer the case.

Currently locums are used to fill in the gaps when local doctors aren't available.

Interim CEO Carolyn Plummer said the doctor recruitment committee was aware of the issue and had discussed changing tactics.

HR commitment

Changes to the terms of reference for the quality committee were accepted by the board, which further reinforce the board's role in human resources.

Quality committee chairman Jeff Gollob presented the amendments to the board, which included receiving quarterly HR reports, reviewing specific HR indicators and oversight of management initiatives for maintaining a healthy work environment.

"We had a discussion at the committee level ... on the question of the corporation's human resources function and how the oversight of human resources should be managed at the board level," said Gollob.

He explained that the quality committee currently receives an HR report annually, but that reviews should be done throughout the year.

"The discussion on HR oversight resulted in a recommendation that the terms of reference for the quality committee should be amended to emphasize the importance of the board's role in oversight of HR matters," he said.

Finding transportation

Community Advisory Committee chairman David Coulson told the board that his committee had been discussing the challenges that lack of transportation posed to county residents.

Even though Community Support Services offers transportation "there are limits and guidelines," he said, which mean not everyone can get to where they're going efficiently.

He noted that recent initiatives to connect people to transportation were good steps, but that not everyone has the Internet or a computer to check these websites.

Those looking for a ride to a medical appointment or for other reasons can go online to www.transportationhaliburton-county.ca. Those without access to a computer can call 705-455-2665 or toll-free 1-844-771-RIDE (7433).

Palliative unit delays

Interim CEO Carolyn Plummer said that HHHS is still waiting to hear from the Ministry of Health on the palliative wing.

"From what I understand all of the components of our most recent submission have been reviewed," she said. No questions or requests for more information have come in.

HHHS has now been waiting longer than expected for approvals and Plummer said a local politician has been asked to help move things forward with the ministry.

There has also not yet been word on whether Haliburton will be receiving rural health hub funding.

Celebrations planned

The HHHS annual general meeting is planned for June 23, which also happens to be the day the Haliburton hospital opened 80 years ago. Plummer told the board that there is a special celebration being prepared for this and several other milestones for HHHS. Those festivities will be coupled with the AGM. Details to come.

Watch for scams

YOUR TAXES ARE FILED, your bills are paid, maybe you even have a return coming. Then you get the call: the Canada Revenue Agency is after you. You owe money and you need to pay up right away. In fact, you're so far behind, the OPP is coming to get you.

That's a call many people in the Haliburton area have been receiving lately and it's enough to scare some into paying up.

The thing is, it's a scam.

Using aggressive tactics and fear of punishment, telephone scam artists have found a new way to rip people off. A few years ago, residents were getting calls about stranded grandkids, alone and in trouble, needing cash. Now we're all being inundated by angry sounding accountants threatening incarceration unless you pay up.

Unfortunately, just as we get the word out about one scam, another one emerges.

And the con artists are getting more clever as time goes on.

Likely most of us are familiar with the "Windows" scam: a man calls saying he works for Windows and has noted something is wrong with your computer. He can fix it, but you need to grant him remote access to your machine. He sounds official ... and whose computer isn't having difficulty some of the time?

CBC reported in 2015 that the Microsoft tech support scam was the most widespread in Canada, with fraudsters once going so far as threatening death to the man on the other end of the line.

Another similar scam starts on your computer with a pop up window (a fraud), which claims there is a virus on your computer. To fix it, you either click a button or call a specific number for help. On the other end of that number is yet another con artist.

Once the scammers gain access to the computer they will steal passwords or install malware. Sometimes they'll charge a fee to clean a computer that has nothing wrong with it.

Knowing the specifics of the scam du jour is useful, but only in the short term, as new scams pop up every day.

Keeping tell-tale signs of scams in mind can help. These are some common signs according to the OPP:

Urgency: the scammer introduces a timeline or pushes the victim to make a decision quickly before he has a chance to think it through.

Fear: threats are leveled (in the case of the CRA scam) or the caller pretends to be scared (in the grandparent scam).

Secrecy: the person on the other end of the phone demands the offer or situation cannot be disclosed to other people – trusted family members especially.

Request for money transfer: typically scammers will want money sent through a company such as Money Gram, Western Union or a bank.

It's safe to say, if someone is demanding you send them money over the phone, you should be suspicious. The best defence against a phone scammer is to just hang up.

If you suspect you've been the victim of a scam, call the Haliburton Highlands OPP at 705-286-1431. You can also file a complaint with the Canadian Anti-Fraud Centre at www.antifraudcentre.ca or by calling 1-888-495-8501.

Trunk and disorderly

THE PROBLEM BEGAN WHEN JENN ASKED me what type of bathing suit I was hoping to find.

"I want something that's plain, age appropriate and does not draw undue attention," I said flatly.

She quickly picked out a plain, red pair of boxer swim trunks and handed them to me – in a large size, no less.

"I take medium," I said.

I should have taken that as the first clue we would not see eye-to-eye on what plain, age appropriate and does not draw undue attention actually means.

She thought it meant boring red boxer trunks with useless pockets.

And while that's generally true, while she was in the change room trying on clothes that had caught her eye, I spied a swim suit that fit the bill much better.

Five minutes later, at the checkout counter, Jenn repeated the question for the fourth or fifth time.

"How on earth does that swimsuit fit the criteria?" she said.

How she did not see it, I'll never know. So I explained yet again.

"This swimsuit is in the legendary colours of The Flash. He is not one of those fancy Marvel superheroes that get all the attention," I said, quite patiently. "He's a DC superhero and that means he hardly gets any recognition at all."

I then pointed out – not for the first or last time that day – that there was only one large lightning bolt overlaid on the fluorescent red, hot orange and nuclear yellow background – and though it covered my left thigh, the rest of the lightning bolts were small, tasteful and understated.

"If I actually wanted attention, I would have got one of those gaudy Thor swimsuits," I added. "You saw where they placed the hammer."

Apparently, all these nuances were lost on Jenn, however.

It didn't help that the six-year-old just behind us in the lineup saw my shorts and yelled, "Mommy, I want a pair too."

I looked at his mother, smiled and said, "They grow up so fast, huh?"

When I looked over to Jenn she had already paid for her stuff and was now wearing sunglasses and burying her face in the store's sale flyer – odd considering she had finished shopping.

Nonetheless, things were going well until, on the way out the greeter saw my swimsuit through the bag and pointed me to the return desk.

"I just bought this," I said.

"I know," she answered and then patted Jenn on the back.

By the time Jenn and I arrived at her aunt's beach cottage, I believe the idea of my swimsuit was finally growing on everyone, however.

"At least we'll always know where you are," they agreed.

"They didn't put that big lightning bolt on there just for fashion," I smiled.

Needless to say, I rocked those swim trunks in a way very few moderately overweight 54-year-olds could. And, strange as it might seem, just wearing the colours of The Flash seemed to influence everyone around me. Whenever I got near Jenn, her aunt or sister, they sped off at the speed of light.

The rest of the weekend worked out fairly well too and I think Jenn finally began to appreciate those swim trunks. She grew so protective of them that whenever I stepped out of the water, she ran over with a towel to cover them, presumably to protect them from the harming rays of the sun and the erosive powers of sand.

"You know none of this would be necessary if I had ignored your advice and just bought the matching cape," I said after the third time.

"For goodness sake, it was not a cape," she snapped. "It was a beach towel."

"It just depends how you wear it," I quipped. "Maybe, I'll go buy it tomorrow."

But, as I suspected, those capes sold out quick. I know this cause Jenn phoned ahead.

Post office closure a slap in the face

To the Editor,

Eroding of Ward 3 Gooderham continues to transpire under the direction of Highlands East council. In its wisdom it has decided not to renew its contract with Canada Post and the post office as it exists will close by Sept. 12. Cecil Ryall, our Ward 3 councillor, not being vehemently vocal to hold public meetings prior to a negative decision by closed session only outlines his loyalties are not with his constituents.

Canada Post pays contractual services to the municipality for the use of the municipal building and the extra money generating services Tracy, our postal employee, secures are, or were, designed to offset Tracy's wages. Her functions and responsibilities encompass various activities. There is much more to postal activities than just putting one's mail in their respective mailboxes. Priority Post, Express Post, preparation of overseas parcels are just a few activities the layperson cannot grasp at the drop of a hat.

Tracy also schedules and prepares paperwork for community centre activities and posts same for public viewing and information. She is our tourist information contact and has been with the municipality for 20 years. It is impossible to express how valuable Tracy is to the successful operation of a longstanding postal service. Council is preaching taxpayers' dollars being at stake and if so, cutting administrators and assistants, council benefits, the trails position (especially seeing the position would be null and void during winter months and spring and summer trail work is done by Jim Alden's department.)

Council could either brown bag their lunches and/or pay for their own instead of having it prepared and paid for on the backs of the taxpayers. A little ingenuity and common sense goes a long

see COMMON page 8

BOONiEVILLE

Common sense goes a long way

way if council is concerned about taxpayers' dollars being at stake.

As for providing an economic benefit to local business I think public outrage is going to backfire on that assumption and I can see many people moving their mail delivery to Irondale or Haliburton. As for a public meeting, the decision has already been made by our so called council so what will be accomplished by this process? If it's to save face it's too late. If the venue does not work out the next step will be those green boxes outside where people will have to fight the elements to get their mail.

The closing of our Gooderham post office will not impact other wards, however, they are part of the Municipality of Highlands East and should consider the impact this closure would have on people in Ward 3 and abroad who depend on our post office.

The closure is a slap in the face to Tracy who has given 20 years towards our successful postal operation and a disgraceful action by council. Next municipal election cannot come fast enough.

Waxing poetic, don'tcha know

Maybelle's

Fireside stories

Why, I just can't help it. It seems everywhere I look I see dandelions poking their button heads through the grass all perky, proud and shouting in those high pitched voices us humans can't hear: We're baa-aacccck!

And the birds. Those welcomed winged angels singing, squawking, a cacophony, a choir, a symphony, everywhere I walk in Lake WhaddyathinkImean. High up in the trees, there they are: Wink, wink, they tease. Barry Manilow, move over!

And, all those geese you see waddling across the road. Cars stopping for mom and her goslings, some of them so big they look just like their mother. What'd you think Goldie Hawn and Kate Hudson were the only ones?

And the lake, so serene ... a mirror showing us the sky, the trees, the bushes in two places at once. Mother Nature's Xerox copy.

You know, to ol' Maybelle's eyes, nature doesn't need to be all perfect-like and in bloom to be beautiful. Why sometimes just the naked limbs of trees look stunning like sculptures reaching, bending, just being.

And oh when the buds start coming in and you go up close ... REAL close ... and they're not open yet but you know they're going to be in a day or two, and there's this pink that you see, a pink that makes pink go right to your cheeks because it's so pretty and makes you feel so happy just to see it.

Never mind about those pesky black fly party poopers. Just keep walking and breathing it all in. And, it doesn't matter where you walk in Lake WhaddyathinkImean, everywhere you look, there's eye-candy.

You know, I've often heard it said: The Divine is in everything. Every THING and in every moment. It's in every one of us, too. And I'm not waxing religious, I'm waxing poetic. I'm sayin' we're all connected to everything, especially nature.

So, whether you're in your running shoes or your flip flops, or barefoot on the grass walking along, maybe dipping your feet in the water (and the lake is getting warmer ... soon we'll be able to swim, don'tcha know) ... walking in Lake Whaddyathin-Imean is awesome.

And when I pass by trees ... some of those old fellas and old gals, oh the way they bend over and stretch their branches wayyyy over a walking path ... a good long stretch as they sigh: Ahhhhhhhhh! Where are my Bran Flakes?

And I thank them. Oh, yes I do, 'specially when the sun's hot and ol' Maybelle needs a bit of cover. And you can bet their roots spread far into the next millennium.

Roots. The roots of trees, the roots of plants. Those perennials popping back up, half of them we all but forgot about. And, what a wonderful surprise to see them come alive again. It gives me a thrill, I tell you. A quiet, silent, good feeling that makes me smile like a Cheshire cat.

And I want to think about that. I want to think about that a lot. Because there's so much in the world that doesn't make me smile. And a simple thing like being outside in nature not only makes me smile, it makes all of ol' Maybelle feel good. Even my pocketbook. Sure, where else can you experience such a fabulous (as my good friend Vilma Yuccch would say) show for FREE?

See you out there!

Blacksmiths bend minds with new creations

JENN WATT

Editor

In the heat and the noise of the Peel Building, amongst the fiery ovens and worn blacksmith tools, a shark emerged from a flat square of mild steel. As the day wore on, fish came to encircle the predator, darting from one panel of metal to the next.

The work, a collaboration created by the students of the blacksmithing master class at Haliburton School of Art and Design on the May 14 weekend, was an exercise not just in stamp making and metal work, but in opening pathways of the mind.

"It's quite nice to do something using traditional ideas, but approaching it in a modern way," says instructor Rebecca Knott.

It's uncommon for blacksmiths to create stamps in contemporary work, she says, and by asking the students to think about creating a picture using a new method, it helps the artists think in a different way.

Knott and her father Terrence Clark are two renowned blacksmiths from the U.K., who came to Canada in May to teach the class and also to continue their work on Clark's ambitious project: Ypres 2016.

Commemorating the centennial of the First World War, Ypres 2016 is a seven-metre-tall cenotaph designed by Clark, which will be installed in Belgium. Along with the towering memorial to those who fought on both sides of the conflict, Clark has solicited 2,000 steel poppies created by blacksmiths around the world.

In Canada, he and Knott travelled to Guelph, Ont., the home of John McCrae, the author of the famous poem In Flanders Fields. There they worked with Canadian blacksmiths on making the poppies for the memorial.

During their trip to Canada, the duo was struck by the newness of Canadian culture in juxtaposition to the longstanding traditions and knowledge of blacksmithing they came from in England.

That tradition has allowed the British to become some of the best blacksmiths in the world, but in the past it also led to secrecy.

Clark said there was a time when most blacksmiths would not share their ideas and techniques, but that has changed. It is a benefit to everyone when people open up and share.

"Knowledge is the road to knowledge," Clark argues. "It's knowledge for everyone."

*Knowledge is the road to knowledge.

— Terrence Clark on the importance of sharing information with fellow blacksmiths

Clark should know. He has been creating works big and small for more than 40 years. He started his career as a welder/fabricator and made good money, but felt that something was missing. When he was 27, he was asked to do some decorative ironwork and it whetted his appetite for blacksmithing.

"I've been poor ever since, but quite happy," he laughs.

His daughter was three years old when she held her first hammer and has been working with metal ever since. At her shop she will create "anything except horse-shoes and swords" – a common misperception about the profession.

Among her works: wedding rings, light fixtures, kitchenware and gates.

On May 15, HSAD's Peel Building was bustling with a dozen blacksmiths of various skill levels hammering out their ideas on metal. Each artist ground and sanded their stamps to their concept of a fish, which was then applied to the hot metal.

The pieces were then assembled into one hanging work.

The shark – a more advanced piece – was created with a technique called repousse. The shape of the creature's body was pushed out of the metal with a series of tools, its body surprisingly smooth given the violent origins of its creation.

"It's been really wonderful working with everyone – to see them get what you're trying to explain," Knott says.

To read more about the Ypres 2016 project, go to ypres2016.com.

See more photos from the class online at haliburtonecho.ca.

Blacksmithing instructors Terrence Clark and Rebecca Knott came to Canada from Guildford, U.K., to teach the course at Haliburton School of Art and Design. They also went to Guelph working on a project creating a memorial for Ypres. JENN WATT Staff

Committee selects winning logo for 150th

JENN WATT

Editor

It was the merging of Dysart et al's past and present in Darby Bayly's logo design that caught the selection committee members' attention.

An image of a hewn tree merged with painterly text brings together the Haliburton of 150 years ago with that of today – a place of creative inspiration built upon hard work.

Bayly's logo design was selected by Dysart et al's 150th Celebration Committee to mark the sesquicentennial of the municipality, which officially arrives on Jan. 7, 2017.

"The selection committee chose Darby's logo because it was different from all of the other submissions," wrote Dysart's recreation program co-ordinator Andrea Mueller in an email to the Echo.

"The cross section of log represents our past as well as present day. We still have logging in the area and use the trees to attract people up here. We didn't count the rings, but the committee thought that there were 150 rings to symbolize Dysart's 150 years."

The Minden-based illustrator said initially she cycled through ideas including more traditional symbols of cottage country, but settled on the log because of its ability to conjure up the early days of Dysart et al.

The logo will be used on the promotional materials for the occasion.

This isn't the first logo Bayly has created. In 2011, her design was selected for the Winterfest senior games held in Haliburton County. Many will remember the plump snowman engaged in winter sports on all of the materials.

Bayly has been living in the Highlands for more than a decade and during that time has grown as an artist, starting with ceramics and textiles and then shifting her focus more into illustration.

"It's a little thrill," she says of seeing her work while out in public or hanging on someone else's wall.

"I love when I go to somebody's house and they've bought something I made years ago that I've completely forgotten about.... I appreciate seeing it out there."

Because she is an illustrator, Bayly is able to infuse her graphic design work with her paintings and drawings, which is how she created the Dysart 150 logo. The log was done by hand in order to confer the organic nature of the wood, but the font was imposed digitally afterwards.

Bayly recently launched a greeting card club, which offers a subscription based service with her original designs sent directly to customers' mailboxes. She also does custom portraits.

She's had requests for families to be depicted as animals such as bobcats, raccoons and others.

"I never anticipated those sort of jobs," she smiles.

She is also working on an infographic of the hamlet of Gelert for local business owners.

Drink a glass of water – thank a wetland

If you used water today to brush your teeth, cook, or quench your thirst, you should probably thank a wetland! If you're wondering why you should care, consider what wetlands do for us.

From providing ecological services such as flood control and carbon storage to food production, wetlands play a vital role in our day-to-day lives.

Wetlands are good for your health. They play a key role in removing sediments, excess nutrients and even bacteria from drinking water. Over two-thirds of Canadians get their drinking water from lakes, rivers and reservoirs, and the quality of that water depends on the health of the watershed, including wetlands. Like giant sponges, wetlands also absorb and replenish water to buffer our communities from flood and drought risks.

Wetlands are vital nesting and feeding grounds for waterfowl, they provide nursery habitat for fishes and are one of Canada's most diverse ecosystems. At least half of our wildlife species rely on wetlands for at least part of their lifecycle.

Canada is home to 25 per cent of the world's wetlands; more than any other country. However, our wetlands are disappearing due to infrastructure development such as roads and cities or drainage for agricultural production. This loss of wetlands is especially high in southern Canada.

CHA Note - The Haliburton Highlands has more than 20,000 wetlands but has lost thousands more. Every wetland we have left is important – let's protect them.

Wetlands are among the Nature Conservancy of Canada's most important habitats we are working to conserve. We also restore wetlands that have been degraded, to improve these natural spaces for migratory birds, amphibians, fishes and other wildlife.

Wetlands filter the water we drink as well as provide a home to many of the species we love. /File photo

In addition to their importance for nature, many of the Nature Conservancy of Canada's wetland areas provide recreational opportunities such as walking, hiking, fishing, wildlife viewing and canoeing, along with educational opportunities for people of all ages to learn and explore.

Canada is well positioned to make a difference on a global scale by protecting our wetlands so that they can continue to trap and store large amounts of carbon. Our wetlands are also important to help nature and local communities adapt to the impacts of climate change by protecting us from storm surges, drought and flooding.

Personal best achievements by Hawks at track meet

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

This year the Red Hawks track and field team is not sending any representatives to the Ontario Federation of Sports Athletic Associations championship in Windsor.

However the team has no reason to hang their collective heads, as there were seven personal bests achieved and one school record set when the team competed at the OFSAA East Regional Track Championships from May 26 to 27 at the Bruce Faulds Track and Field Facility in Belleville.

Senior Hawks athlete Kenndal Marsden finished fifth in the 200 metre dash with a season personal best of 27.11 while junior boy Nolan Flood finished sixth in javelin with a personal best throw of 38.17 metres. Midget boy Shawn Walker ran another personal best in the 800 metre run in 2:13.47, breaking his school record again. Junior boy Sam Longo ran a personal best in the 1,500 metre run with 4:36.21, midget boy Coleman Heaven ran a personal best in 300 metre hurdles with 50.57 seconds, senior boy Ryan Hill jumped a personal best in long-jump with 5.57 metres and senior girl Shae MacNaull threw a season personal best in javelin with 28.73 metres. Coach Bruce Griffith wrote in an email, “everyone worked extremely hard and had a great time. It was a pleasure to coach this team and I'll miss it!”

I will miss the kids and watching the quality of the athleticism. I won't miss the bus rides!

Griffith, who is retiring at the conclusion of this year, coached for nine years, which included 1989 and 1990 and then from 2010 to 2016.

“I will miss the kids and watching the quality of the athleticism. I won't miss the bus rides!” he said.

Diverse products and services at the Home and Cottage Show

JENN WATT

Editor

The Haliburton Home and Cottage Show is just the right size with just the right mix of vendors to make for a pleasant afternoon out, says home show manager Rick Ashall.

"It really is the diversity that comes through," he says of the three-day offering now in its 38th year in Haliburton Village.

Running from Friday, June 3, to Sunday, June 5, the show includes more than 150 exhibitors in both the A.J. LaRue Arena and the Haliburton Curling Club.

Food and entertainment is planned alongside the booths including everything from wakeboards and canoes to cool new technology.

The emphasis, of course, is on goods and services you can use to better your home or cottage such as docks, building supplies and local contractors.

"Most shows don't have outside exhibits," Ashall notes, but in Haliburton you will find boats, outdoor furnaces and a bunkie outside. There is also plenty of free parking close to the venue.

Admission is $3 for adults and children get in for free.

"It is predominantly service and product organizations from the county," he says. "If you're looking for advice, it's all in one place."

Unlike some larger shows, Ashall says the Haliburton Home and Cottage Show can be viewed in a couple of hours, making it a comfortable trip out. There are also several boutique vendors with smaller spaces offering unique products.

For more information, go to www.haliburtonhomeandcottage.com or contact Ashall at clubcurling@bellnet.ca.

Duchene savours golden moment from world championships

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Haliburton's Matt Duchene is continuing his streak of golden achievements after knocking off Finland 2-0 with his Canadian teammates in the final of the IIHF (International Ice Hockey Federation) World Championships in Moscow, Russia.

Coming into the final, the Canadians suffered their only loss of the tournament to the same Finnish team when they lost 4-0 during the round robin.

The team edged out the Finns with a game-winner from Connor McDavid and an empty net goal from Duchene.

This is Duchene's second gold medal from this championship tournament in as many years with Team Canada.

It didn't diminish the achievement for him, particularly with this year's younger squad.

"It means a lot. It was such an awesome group of guys, a very young team and a very close team. We bonded right away and it showed on the ice. This year's win wasn't as much of a given as last year when our team was insanely dominant so I think it made the victory that much sweeter," he wrote in an email.

Following Duchene's insurance marker with 0.9 seconds left, there was a jubilant celebration.

"It was so fun to watch all the young kids celebrate the way we did after winning, I couldn't stop smiling," he said.

Days after speaking with the Echo about his gold medal, Duchene was named to the roster for the Canadian team that will play at the upcoming World Cup of Hockey this coming September in Toronto. The preliminary roster was announced earlier this spring in March.

This will be the fourth gold medal Duchene will be working towards in under three years after two IIHF World Championships and winning Olympic gold in Sochi back in 2014.

Before the announcement, Duchene compared making this team to how he made the Olympic squad that won gold in Sochi, Russia.

"Hoping I make it. [It] would be an honour to make that team, similar to when I made the Olympic team. I put my best foot forward at the World Championships where we were all watched closely by the World Cup brass, so at this point it's in their hands. I'm nervous but hopeful for tomorrow!" he said.

He expects to be in Haliburton for the summer starting this week and is looking forward to returning home. "I can't wait to get back on the water and back in town.

I'll be there for the summer. There's no better place for me to spend time," he said.

In past few summers he has made the rounds, making public appearances.

So far he hasn't confirmed anything, but is concerned the public has had enough of him.

"As for appearances, it will be something I look more into in the coming weeks. I feel like I've done so many in the prior few summers everyone around town is probably sick of seeing me. Ha ha," he said.

I can't wait to get back on the water and back in town. I'll be there for the summer. There's no better place for me to spend time.

— Matt Duchene

Notice

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC MEETING FOR A ZONING BY-LAW UPDATE FOR THE MUNICIPALITY OF HIGHLANDS EAST

TAKE NOTICE that further to the Public Open Houses that were held on this matter on August 20th and 21st, 2015, the Council for The Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East will be holding a public meeting under Section 34 of the Planning Act, R.S.O. 1990, C.P. 13 as amended, to inform the public and provide opportunity for public comments on the proposed update to Comprehensive Zoning By-law for the Municipality of Highlands East.

DATE AND LOCATION OF PUBLIC MEETING

Date: Monday, June 27th, 2016
Public Meeting: 11:00 am
Location: 1101 Holmes Road - the new County Library in Wilberforce
Wilberforce, Ontario

SUMMARY OF THE PROPOSED ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT

The Zoning By-law is the primary implementation tool of the Official Plan authorized by the Planning Act. It is the pre-eminent By-law whose purpose is to regulate land use as well as the location of buildings and structures. The Municipality's current Comprehensive Zoning By-law was approved in 2005 and was updated in 2008. Given that the Municipality updated its Official Plan in 2013, the timing is appropriate to update the Zoning By-law again.

Some of the proposed changes to the current Zoning By-law include:

- New zoning schedules (mapping);
- Regulations allowing accessory dwelling units within existing dwellings;
- Revised regulations for the expansion of dwellings within the shoreline setback;
- Regulations and new/revised definitions related to accessory buildings and dwelling units;
- Revised regulations for marine facilities (docks) and in-water structures;
- Regulations to implement Minimum Distance Separation (MDS) from agricultural uses; and,
- The consolidation of zone amendments and mapping changes since the last update in 2008.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

There is no key map given that the Zoning By-law Amendment affects all lands within the Municipality of Highlands East. However, the proposed consolidated Zoning By-law and its related mapping can be viewed in the following locations:

- Municipality of Highlands East Municipal Office, 2249 Loop Road, Wilberforce (9 am to 4:30 pm)
- Gooderham Office, 1032 Gooderham Street, Gooderham (9 am to 4:30 pm)
- Cardiff Office, 2778 Monck Road, Cardiff (9 a.m. to 3:30 pm)
- The Municipal of Highlands East Website –www.Highlands East.ca

The purpose of this meeting is to ensure that sufficient information is made available to enable the public to generally understand the proposed changes to the Zoning By-law that is being considered by Council. Any person who attends the meeting shall be afforded an opportunity to make comments on the draft Zoning By-law. Council will then use the information collected at this meeting to make a decision at a future meeting as to whether the Zoning By-law update can be adopted or should be modified.

If you wish to be notified of the decision of the Council for the Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East in respect to the proposed Zoning By-law Update, you must submit a written request (with forwarding addresses) to the Clerk of the Municipality of Highlands East.

If a person or public body files an appeal of a decision of the Council for the Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East, in respect of the proposed Zoning By-law Amendment but does not make oral submissions at a public meeting or make written submissions to Council before the proposed amendments are adopted, the Ontario Municipal Board may dismiss all or part of the appeal.

Bringing warmth to new community members

The Knitting for Warmth group's project manager Mary Trepanier, left, and members Pat Thornett and Lillian Mann hold three blankets from the collection of 21 that will be given to the 11-member refugee family, escaping the Syrian conflict coming to live in the Highlands through the co-ordination of the Haliburton Refugee Sponsorship Committee. (The committee learned last week that the family would be 11 members, not 10 as they were originally told.) This was a community effort by Haliburton County residents, both seasonal and permanent, Trepanier said, who said the group has produced 2,176 blankets from 69,658 squares, equalling close to 70,000 hours since it started 14 years. The group welcomes donations of yarn, time knitting or crocheting the squares or sewing the blankets together with the group at the Minden United Church on Tuesdays from 1 to 4 p.m. Contact Trepanier at 705-286-5173 or at gullriver@gmail.com. /DARREN LUM Staff

Although I was absent from Guilford for the day, news of the annual spring Craft and Bake Sale reached my ears. It began at 9 a.m. on May 28 at the Centre with approximately 15 vendors at the tables. This included the ever popular Maple Lake baked goods, Kathleen's biscuits are snapped up quickly as usual. I am assured that the sewn, knitted and quilted crafts were up to their usual fine quality.

We offer condolences to Paul Hebert and family Dawn, Jon and Bobby in the sad loss of Linda, wife and mother.

The four of us Owens girls, Kathleen, myself, June and Mavis were all able to attend the reunion in Barrie on Saturday as the doors closed for the last time on the Collegiate there.

Euchre carries on for the summer every Tuesday evening at 7:00 p.m.

Scores for May 24:

High: Tina Hadley and Perry Morrison

Low: Leslie Thatcher and Emile Duchene
